

Hooked on Classics

Sailing enthusiasts who prefer the elegant lines of a classic wooden yacht to today's high-tech racers can indulge their passion for vintage vessels at the Antigua Classic Yacht Regatta (antiguaclassics.com) from April 15 to 20. Each year, the regatta draws about 60 boats, which are classified as Vintage (launched before 1950), Classic (built between 1950 and 1975), and Spirit of Tradition (modern boats built with classic styling). The Antigua race kicks off the annual Panerai Classic Yachts Challenge series sponsored by Officine Panerai (panerai.com), which once produced timepieces for the Italian and Egyptian navies. The circuit includes events in the Mediterranean as well as regattas in Newport, Rhode Island, and Nantucket, Massachusetts. This season, Panerai showcases and races its newly restored Eilean (pictured), a 1936 Bermudian ketch that will serve as a brand ambassador. "The classic yacht regattas maximize the expression of our tradition, which is linked to the sea," says Angelo Bonati, CEO of Panerai, which also produces a limited-edition Regatta watch each year. — L.K.

Focal Point

The next time you're bent on catching a glimpse of that slippery Bohemian Waxwing or Yellow-billed Cuckoo, the one thing you won't have to worry about is focusing the lenses of your binoculars. That's because STEINER, the German optical-design house, has made bird-watching and other wilderness activities requiring keen vision a whole lot simpler with its new auto-focusing Wildlife Pro Ultra-Sharp 8x30 binoculars. Covered in rubberized armor and equipped with highlight-transmission lenses that, in a one-time maneuver, separately adjust for right- and left-eye conditions, the binoculars are specifically made to bring even the fastest-flying fowl and other elusive creatures into sharp focus. $399, steiner-binoculars.com — W.K.

GYM BAG UPGRADE

Unlike most sport bags designed simply to store the contents of the sportsman's life, ZEGNA SPORT's new gym bag is made to also be watertight like one of the century-old clothing maker's technically innovative jackets. The duffel is crafted from extremely lightweight, durable, and water-repellent nylon that is both down-filled and quilted and features soft leather trim, handles, and pocket piping. A bonus zip compartment underneath is roomy enough to store sneakers or to separate wet towels from the rest of your belongings. It also comes with an adjustable/removable nylon shoulder strap to allow the bag to pull double — even triple — duty as a weekender or airline carry-on. $550, zegna.com — W.K.
